Career Coaching

To support employees affected by change in their workplace, Kin has developed a set of carefully curated career coaching modules. These modules equip people to be well prepared for future work opportunities in today's market. Each module has been designed so that the individual can select which topics feel most relevant to their situation. Sessions can be delivered one to one or in small groups, facilitated by one of our experienced Talent Specialists. In our experience, the best results come when all four modules are completed.

Module #1

Who am I and what do I stand for?

Your job and career is an important part of your life. Taking some time to think about where you've been and where you want to go can make planning "where to from here?" a lot easier. This module works through a series of steps that will help identify who you are, what you stand for, and what you need to be at your best in the workplace.

Module #2

How to put together a winning CV and cover letter

The purpose of a CV and cover letter is to ensure an application progresses to the next stage in the recruitment process. When written well, these documents will help the reader to clearly understand a candidate's fit for the role and give them an insight into who they are as a person. This module covers how to construct a compelling cover letter and a clear and concise CV that is relevant in today's market.

Module #3

Job Search and Networking

Job seeking can take many forms, some passive, some deliberate. In our experience, the most successful job hunters use a variety of channels in their quest to find a new role. By the end of this module the candidate will understand how to get the best out of job boards, how to work with traditional recruitment agencies, and how to leverage their networks like a pro.

Module #4

Interviewing

The interview stage is one of the most important aspects of the job seeking process and it can feel daunting. But it doesn't need to! This module prepares candidates to respond to a variety of different interview styles, in a way that is clear and authentic.
